Mr. Weeks, upon taking the chair, addressed the Senate as follows :

Senators : Elected by the vote that has just been announced, to preside over your deliberations, I should do great injustice to my own feelings if I should omit, on this occasion, to return you my most sincere thanks for this expression of your confidence and kindness.

Sensible of my own inexperience in legislative proceedings, and my limited knowledge of the rules and regulations usually adopted for the government of deliberative assemblies, I shall enter upon the discharge of the duties that your partiality has assigned me, with great diffidence in my own abilities, relying upon your forbearance and friendly assistance for my support. Such abilities as I have shall be cheerfully and honestly devoted to your service.

You will pardon me for the suggestion that our principal official duties here consist in devising those means by which we may the most extensively promote the interests of our common constituency, whose partiality has entrusted them to our immediate care and protection ; and while on the one hand we should not make any great changes in the laws without great deliberation, and an honest conviction of their public utility, so on the other hand, no blind veneration for the opinions of those who have preceded us should prevent us from adopting a measure to remedy any defect that may exist in the laws upon our statute book.

During our legislative career, now about to commence, let us endeavor to discharge our official duties to the acceptance of those whose servants we are, and let us also invoke upon our exertions the blessings of that Providence who has watched over our beloved country from its infancy to its present advancement in glory and prosperity.

7. No member shall absent himself, without permission, from the Senate.

8. A motion shall be seconded before it is debated, and if required by the President or any member, it shall be reduced to writing.

And no motion to postpone indefinitely, to postpone to a certain day, or to commit, being decided, shall be in order at the same stage of the bill or proposition, until after an adjournment.

10. If the question under debate will admit of division, any member may have it divided; and in filling blanks, the longest time and the largest sum shall be put first.

The last question upon the second reading of a bill or resolution shall always be—Shall it be read a third time? and no amendment shall be received or discussed on the third reading of any bill or resolution, unless by consent of eight members present; but it shall at all times be in order, before the final passage of a bill or resolution, to move its commitment, and should such commitment take place, and an amendment be reported, the bill or resolution shall again be read a second time and considered as in committee of the whole.

22. The titles of bills, and such parts thereof as may be affected by proposed amendments, shall be entered on the journals.

23. All bills, resolutions and addresses, after passing the Senate, shall be signed by the President; and all warrants and other processes issued by order of the Senate, shall be under his hand and seal, attested by the clerk.

25. All committees shall be appointed by the President, unless a member requests that the appointment shall be by ballot, in which case it shall be so done.

26. When the Senate shall concur with the House of Representatives in the appointment of a joint committee, consisting of not more than five members of the House, one member shall be added on the part of the Senate; but when more than five, two members of the Senate shall be added.

27. Messages shall be sent to the House of Representatives by the clerk of the Senate.

28. Messages from the Governor or House of Representatives may be received at all times, except when the Senate is engaged in putting a question, in calling the ayes and noes, in counting ballots, or in reading the journal.

29. All questions shall be put by the President, and each member of the Senate shall signify his assent or dissent by answering aye or no. If the President doubts, or a division is called for, the Senate shall divide; those in the affirmative of the question shall first rise from their seats and stand till they be counted, and afterwards those in the negative shall rise and stand till they be counted. The President shall then rise and state the decision of the Senate.

30. No person except the members of the Executive, or members of the House of Representatives and their officers, shall be admitted within the bar of the Senate, except by invitation of the President, or some member with his consent.

Williams, and inform him of the election of Hon. "Mr. President—The House of Representatives are ready "And I here present your Excellency a copy of the constitution of this State as your guide in the discharge of your official duties."

His Excellency then made the following

ADDRESS.

Gentlemen of the Senate and

House of Representatives:

Profoundly grateful to my fellow citizens for the almost gratuitous confidence which has assigned to me the important and responsible station I now occupy, I enter upon the duties that fall to my share in the administration of the government of the State, with an anxiety, inseparable from the position at all times, but greatly heightened on this occasion by my want of former official participation in public affairs. All I can venture to hope is, that a sacred regard for the interests and honor of the State, and an honest purpose to maintain and advance them to the extent of my ability, may enable me to pass through my term of service, if not with the credit of having accomplished much good, at least with the consciousness that, at my hands, the State has suffered no detriment.

I am the more deeply impressed with the solemn importance of the charge, which as servants of the public we have all undertaken, when I look upon the happy and prosperous condition of our State as contrasted with the lot of the suffering and struggling millions in the other hemisphere. We find ourselves in the tranquil enjoyment of a political system based upon the well-established principles of popular sovereignty and equal rights; with laws and institutions admirably adapted to the circumstances of our position, and affording to all, what is the great end of all good government, the most ample security for "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness" that can be hoped for from the imperfect creations of human wisdom. We find ourselves a well-fed, well-clothed, well-educated and contented people, reaping in peace the abundant rewards of energetic and well-directed industry in all the various pursuits of civilized life; rich, notwithstanding our rough climate and rougher soil, in all that constitutes the real and substantial wealth of a State; unembarrassed by a public debt; with works of public utility of gigantic magnitude, and requiring a vast expenditure of labor and capital, either completed or in progress, visible wherever the eye may range over our mountains and valleys; and with schools and churches and other aids and securities for learning, religion and morality, covering the land. These and other scarcely less striking proofs of the beneficent influence of republican institutions upon a people fitted to receive them, surround us on all sides. A contemplation of these signal privileges and blessings must quicken our sense of duty to that people who have committed to our hands so precious a trust.

In presenting to your notice, on this occasion, such matters as are thought to be entitled to a share of your attention, I shall content myself, without seeking for subjects of legislative action in speculations of my own, with a brief allusion to certain topics, which have already, to some extent, occupied the public mind, and in regard to which there are pretty sure indications of what the public sentiment demands, believing that with an intelligent constituency, alive to its interests, and accustomed to the free expression of its wishes and opinions, legislation may safely wait to be prompted by the popular will.

Prominent among the measures which, there is reason to believe, will be pressed with earnestness upon your attention at the present session, is an essential alteration of the militia law. That your early action upon this subject is imperatively demanded, must be admitted by all good citizens, whether the friends or the opponents of a military organization. The time has arrived when the system should be either abandoned altogether, as fraught with incorrigible evil, or placed upon such a footing of efficiency and respectability as to command the obedience and receive the cordial support of the people throughout the State. No one, having a regard for the dignity of the State, or wishing to hold in respect the character of our citizens, can desire to see repeated the spectacle now so commonly witnessed when the militia are called out for training and parade. It is not unusual on these occasions to see large bodies of men making a studied mockery of a public duty, furnishing a pernicious example of insubordination to the laws, and bringing into contempt the authority of the State. I should be doing great injustice not to say that there are many honorable exceptions to this charge. There are yet to be seen in various parts of the State many fine companies, distinguished for the exactness of their discipline, their soldierly ambition and beautiful appearance; and, in some entire districts, the whole body of the militia are, I am informed, still animated by that ancient spirit which impelled every man to perform the duties of a citizen soldier with alacrity and pride. How long this portion of the militia would be able to resist the demoralizing influences which have wrought so great a change elsewhere, it may not be difficult to predict.

Various causes have combined to produce the present state of feeling in regard to the militia service. There are those amongst us, who, from their position, education and character, have considerable weight and influence, who, exempt themselves from the burdens of the service, and incapable, perhaps, of understanding or sympathizing with its pleasures and excitements, by constantly depreciating the value and importance of the militia, and by condemning all military display as a mere exhibition of puerile vanity, have contributed largely to bring the present and preceding systems into disrepute. The disappearance from the stage of our old stock of revolutionary soldiers, whose inspiring example and enthusiastic and inextinguishable passion for arms did so much, while they lived, to enkindle and keep alive the military ardor of their younger countrymen, may also be reckoned among the causes of the decline of the military spirit. Something may also be attributed to the excessive and fastidious refinement of modern education and habits, which looks with indifference or distaste upon the ruder yet manly exercises of the olden time. But I cannot doubt that the present state of public sentiment upon this subject is owing, in a still greater measure, to an opinion now very prevalent among citizens, who are wanting neither in patriotism nor manhood, that the law now in force calls upon duty a much larger number than the exigency of the State or country can in any supposable contingency require. To whatever causes, however, we may justly impute its present fallen condition, it must be apparent to all, that if we would preserve the institution from total destruction, some remedy must be speedily applied before the process of disorganization and decay has advanced beyond the reach of curative skill. I cannot believe that the people of this State are yet prepared to hazard the fearful consequences of discarding this ancient and essentially Democratic institution. It was one of the most solemn admonitions of our Fathers, as well as an emphatic injunction of our constitution, to establish and maintain it. I can perceive nothing in the present condition of our own country or the world, or in the pregnant signs of the times, that would justify us in abandoning it. It is not less now than ever the only "proper, natural and sure defence of a State," in which the people rely alone, under Providence, for the preservation of their liberties and rights, upon their own strong arms and stout hearts. I am not prepared, nor would I presume to offer to you a digested plan of reform; but I ardently hope that your wisdom may be able to devise and adopt an organization that shall give us the command of a strong and effective military force, easily available for all purposes of protection and defence, and especially when needed to aid the civil authorities in upholding the supremacy of the laws. The legislature has been so often fatigued by the discussion of this "vexed" and difficult question, that this recurrence to it may be unwelcome—I hope not fruitless.

There has never been wanting in the people of this State, a just appreciation of the value and importance of their system of popular education. They have especially regarded their free schools as their only security for the moral and religious character of their youth, and as the chief fountains of that intelligence which is a necessary qualification for the performance of the various duties of life, and indispensable to the citizen of a State in which every man may be regarded as a component part of the sovereignty. The law of 1846, creating the office of commissioner, is one of the later measures designed to elevate the character and extend the usefulness of common schools. It has been executed, so far as I am informed, with distinguished ability and zeal—all has been accomplished that could have been reasonably anticipated in the circumstances under which the experiment has been tried. From the course of procedure necessarily adopted, it is too soon yet to look for any strikingly beneficial results directly referable to its agency. As an indispensable preliminary work, the earliest efforts of the commissioners have been directed to a discovery of the wants and defects of the schools—to awakening an interest in their condition and management, and to securing, as far as possible, the active personal co-operation of the people. When, and as fast as, these objects are attained, the progress of improvement will advance, and the practical benefits of the system may be expected to appear. In his valuable report to be submitted at the present session, the commissioner enumerates, as among the encouraging proofs of a growing interest in the cause of education, the voluntary appropriation, during the current year, by a majority of the towns, of a sum nearly one-third greater than the amount required by law to be raised for the support of schools; the efforts made to provide a class of more thoroughly qualified teachers by means of teachers' institutes, which have been established and conducted with great success in several of the counties; the erection of better constructed school houses; the extensive introduction of improved school books; and the employment of more approved methods of teaching. These are certainly most gratifying indications of progress, and promise a fulfilment, at no distant day, of the best hopes of those who have been engaged in giving an impulse to the cause of popular instruction. It would be an error, however, to imagine that any measure of success attending an effort for the improvement of schools, would supersede the further necessity of vigilance. Their prosperity is so intimately connected with our welfare, and so essential to the stability of our civil, religious and political institutions, that they must ever be regarded as deserving the unremitting attention of legislative wisdom. To neglect what, if maintained in vigorous action, is productive of incalculable blessings to the country, would incur the imputation of treachery to a cause which we are bound by every obligation of duty to cherish and promote. The commissioner is now required by law to render to the State only twenty weeks' service in the year—a time within which it is manifestly impossible for him to accomplish seasonably, or satisfactorily to himself or the public, a moiety of the great objects contemplated in his appointment. His labors are so multiplied and arduous, the field of his operations so extended, and the subjects to which he can profitably give his attention so inexhaustible, that nothing less than the whole time and undiverted energies of any individual, however able, faithful or diligent, are equal to the proper discharge of the duties of that office. I would therefore respectfully invite you to consider the expediency of extending his term of service to the whole year, with a suitable addition to his compensation.

The N. H. Asylum for the Insane is also an object of increasing interest and importance. The eminent success which has attended its management for the nearly seven years since it was opened, and the vast amount of suffering it has alleviated, have established it firmly and permanently in the public confidence and favor. As the only State institution within our limits dedicated exclusively to charitable and benevolent uses, it appeals with unanswerable force to our pride, as well as to our reason and our humanity, for a liberal and unstinted support. It appears from the later reports of the Visitors, Trustees and Superintendent, that the rooms are already filled to their utmost capacity with patients, leaving a large number of insane within our own State, equally entitled with others to the advantages it affords, against whom the doors of the asylum are of necessity closed. It rests with you to determine whether the building shall be enlarged; for it is obvious that if this is done at all, it must be done by the State alone. All that is asked for is an appropriation to defray the cost of erection. No further call upon the State treasury is anticipated for the ordinary expenses of the establishment. They have thus far been met without public aid, and with the judicious economy that has always distinguished its management, it may continue to be, what it has hitherto been, a self supporting institution. I cannot entertain a doubt, that when fully understood, the appeal in its behalf will find a friendly response in the heart of every member of the legislature. Let those who hesitate, remember that irreparable mischief may result from delay; that the opportunity of relieving the victims of this frightful malady, once slighted, may be lost forever.

The national medical convention, at their late meetings, have turned their attention to the importance of a general registration, in the several States of the Union, of the births, marriages and deaths, occurring within their respective borders, and have addressed a memorial upon the subject to the different State governments. The advantages of this measure, in its sanitary and moral effects, as strikingly exemplified by the results in other countries and States where it has been adopted, are urged by the convention with great force. The deliberate sanction of this measure by a body of gentlemen so eminent in scientific attainments and so distinguished for their zealous and enlightened efforts to promote the physical and moral welfare of their fellow-men, would seem to be sufficient to commend the subject to your favorable consideration.

An act of tardy justice to this State was passed near the close of the last session of Congress, by which provision is made for the settlement of our claim against the United States for military expenses incurred in maintaining jurisdiction over the Indian Stream settlement in 1835-6. The amount of the account as transmitted by the Governor of this State in 1837 to the President of the United States, was six thousand and twenty-eight dollars and sixty-three cents. The claim is yet to be settled and adjusted by the second auditor of the treasury. The appointment of an agent to attend to the settlement of the account with that officer, and to receive for the State the amount that shall be awarded, will occur to you as necessary.

I have thus, gentlemen, briefly adverted to such matters of local interest as more immediately concern us as the agents of the people of this State. The occasion might, perhaps, invite to a wider range of discussion and remark. There is much, in the rapid and startling succession of events on the European continent, to arrest our attention and awaken our sympathies; and we are never without exciting questions of national policy, growing out of the diversified character, institutions, and interests of this great family of States. But upon these and other subjects, not coming under our official cognizance, my own views are too unimportant to be obtruded on your notice, and I need not assume to express the sentiments of others.

Allow me, in conclusion, to express a hope that, in the exercise of the powers which we hold in trust for the welfare of the whole people, and not for party, or personal, or selfish objects, we may be animated by that conciliatory spirit which can recognize the possibility of tolerating a difference of opinion, without a sacrifice of principle or personal independence, and that we may be guided by that true and comprehensive patriotism which shall lead us all "to unite in common efforts for the common good."

SAMUEL DINSMOOR.

STANDARD WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

At the last session of the legislature an act was passed requiring the several County Sealers to present the standard weights and measures of the several counties at the Treasury office of the State, and try and prove the same by the standard weights and measures received from the United States government. It is proper that the legislature should be apprised that the only standard weights and measures received from the United States government, are the following :

One box containing avoirdupois weights of the following dimensions : 1 weight of 50 lbs., 1 weight of 25 lbs., 1 weight of 20 lbs., 1 weight of 10 lbs., 1 weight of 5 lbs., 1 weight of 4 lbs., 1 weight of 3 lbs., 1 weight of 2 lbs., 1 weight of 1 lb., and down to 1 oz.

One box containing troy weights of different dimensions, from 1 lb. down to 1 pwt.

One box containing the United States Standard Yard.

No scale-beam has been received, nor balance of any kind ; no dry measure nor liquid measure ; nor is there any such article deposited in this office.

I have lately received information that there are at Washington a half bushel measure, and a set of liquid measures, ready for delivery, upon the order of the Executive of this State. A set of standard balances is in course of preparation. If the law of the last session is to be continued, it would seem to be necessary that some provision should be made to render the standards complete.

The following persons have presented and compared the standard County Weights and Measures in their possession, with such as are found in this office, viz :

Charles Bailey, Sealer of Weights and Measures for county of Sullivan ; Seth Eastman, Sealer of Weights and Measures for county of Merrimack ; Anderson J. Marshall, Sealer of Weights and Measures for county of Coos.

BURR'S MAP.

There remains in this office one dozen of Burr's Map of New England, formerly purchased by the State, and which might be appropriated to such Literary Institutions as need them.

LITERARY FUND.

The amount of the Literary Fund remaining in the Treasury, June 1, 1849, being the sum of former dividends to sundry unincorporated places, having no organization to receive and disburse the same, is $243 80.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened, That while it is the right of every Chief Magistrate to employ public agents, especially in the more important posts connected with the executive departments, whose views of national policy correspond with his own, we find no expressions of condemnation too strong for the course of that executive officer, who, professing to have "no friends to reward and no enemies to punish"—disavowing in the most solemn form, all partisan prejudices, declaring that if elected, he would be the head of the nation, and not of a party, pledging himself personally and officially before the country, not to make removals from office for differences of political opinion, nor for any causes other than dishonesty or incompetency, uses the highest office in the gift of the country to break and falsify all the pledges thus solemnly made, to promote the very party schemes he has disclaimed, to brand as incompetent or dishonest, (so far as any act of his can do it,) thousands of faithful public servants of the highest characters for ability and integrity, and to bring reproach upon our country by such a flagrant exhibition of bad faith and dereliction of duty in a station so differently administered by the immortal Washington and the other illustrious statesmen, under the color of whose name and example this paltry and most disreputable proscription is sought to be carried on.

Resolved, That fresh from the battle fields of a war which we have ever regarded as just and necessary, the battle fields upon which the valor of the brave men of our country had borne him on from victory to victory, Zachary Taylor forgot what was due to his honor as well as to services of others, the most meritorious, when he consented to lend the very popularity he had acquired by his achievements in the prosecution of that war as the instrument wherewith its unscrupulous opponents might for a time strike down its patriotic supporters, winning a political triumph for those who denounced the war as infamous, its soldiers as murderers, and sought to starve out those soldiers by denying them supplies, or ignominiously to withdraw them from the field; and more than all, when in the face of reiterated pledges against political intolerance, he stooped to use the Presidency thus attained as the besom of a proscription, not only without parallel for extent in any similar period of time, but embracing in its indiscriminate sweep, men who have been maimed and disabled from their ordinary pursuits while nobly fighting at his side, brave defenders of their country, whom he, of all men, should have been the last to have assailed, the first to have defended.

Resolved, That in view of these and other considerations, we trust and doubt not that the American Senate, at its coming session, will fearlessly and fully discharge the duty with regard to executive nominations, which the laws of the land may impose, adopting therein that course which the safety, interests and honor of our government and country may clearly require; that they will not sanction the appointment of individuals, if any such are proposed, whose "dishonesty or incompetency" has been made manifest by their lives and practices before, or by their courses in office since their nomination, nor whose past career has disclosed a spirit and principles better fitted to the work of facilitating the hostile operations of a foreign cabinet, than of striving for the advancement of the happiness and honor of our own rapidly increasing and most glorious land.

Resolved, That in our belief Congress has the constitutional power to prohibit the introduction of slavery into any territory now free, and that we are in favor of the use, at this time, of that power; but that while we claim to ourselves, as democrats, the right to the full and free exercise of our opinions upon this subject, without coercion or proscription therefor from any quarter, we are willing to concede the same privilege to our democratic brethren entertaining different opinions, in other sections of the country, recognizing as members of the democratic family, all who, though differing from us upon minor or temporary questions, are yet united in support of the great and vital principles which have constituted the republican platform from the days of Jefferson to the present time;

The Senate proceeded to the consideration of the foregoing preamble and resolutions, sent up from the House of Representatives, to wit :

A preamble and sundry resolutions relating to slavery and the slave trade ;

Which were read and were as follows :

The select committee, to whom were referred the report and resolutions of the legislature of Virginia, and also certain resolutions of the legislature of Missouri, upon the subject of fugitive slaves, and other matters pertaining to the institution of slavery, respectfully

REPORT :

That without entering into any general examination of the reasoning of the report in question, your committee are of opinion that many of the topics therein discussed, are such as to require no action on the part of New Hampshire. This State has “ commenced ” no “ war of legislation against the owners of fugitive slaves.” It has assumed no position upon which it may not rightfully stand, without violation of the principles either of justice, humanity or the constitution. It has been actuated by no "feigned philanthropy;" neither "irresponsible mobs composed of fanatics, ruffians and fugitive slaves," nor mobs in any other way constituted, have had any recent existence here. That "irregular outbreaks of brutal violence and ferocity have happened in the free States," that "insane fanatics and brutal ruffians," have in these scenes been continually violating the rights of those who own slaves, is asserted in the report under consideration, in language far too broad for truth, and far too angry for that courtesy which ought to be observed in the intercourse between sovereign States. That these pictures are drawn with more feeling than fidelity, and are the result of a distempered fancy rather than an impartial observation of facts, our knowledge of the orderly and law observing character of non-slaveholding communities, compels us to believe.

We trust that the report in question, does a similar injustice to the slaveholding communities for which it speaks, when it intimates, that if the laws are not modified and executed to their satisfaction, they will invade the territory of the free States, and re-act upon their southern frontiers, forays which occurred upon the borders of Scotland, in a semi-barbarous age!

We should regret the occurrence of such scenes. We should regret the attempt, threatened in various alternatives and in various parts of the report in question, to divide this Union, or excite an armed resistance to its laws. But yet we most confidently believe, that our institutions are inherent with power sufficient for their own protection and that of every portion of the American people.

The new legal remedy, asked for by the report under consideration, is indeed remarkable. That every postmaster and collector in the free States, shall be clothed with the same judicial power, over the rights and liberty of persons claimed as slaves, as courts of the United States may now exercise—that every member of this newly constituted host of magistrates, may surround himself with marshals, possessing every summary process—that all improper acts, occurring whenever and wherever, in presence of any considerable number of persons, an alleged fugitive slave is demanded, or held in custody, shall be removed from the jurisdiction of the State courts, to the courts of the United States—are claims so extraordinary, so insulting to the free States, that they cannot have been advanced with any expectation of their meeting with the sanction of any State where a regard to the interests of slavery has not become paramount to every proper appreciation of State rights, and of the rights and security of free men.

The report of the Virginia legislature complains that the New England States, with a sterile soil and ungenial climate, have become, in proportion to their population, the most wealthy communities in the world, while comparative poverty has fallen upon the south, and its commerce and navigation have been transferred from its own harbors to those of the north. It might have drawn a like comparison between Ohio and Kentucky, between free territory and slave territory at every point where they come in contact. Is it strange that the free States, with these facts every where spread out before them, should be unwilling to see slavery extended, with its blighting influences, over territories now free?

The committee conclude this report by recommending the adoption of the following resolutions:

1. Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened, That opposed to every form of oppression, the people of New Hampshire have ever viewed with deep regret the existence of slavery in this Union; that while they have steadfastly supported all sections in their constitutional rights, they have not only lamented its existence as a great social evil, but regarded it as fraught with danger to the peace and welfare of the nation.

2. Resolved, That while in periods of excitement, the opponents of slavery have resorted to measures which we have thought it our duty to oppose and censure, on the other hand slaveholding communities, in many portions of this confederacy, have engaged in excitements, and resorted to measures equally deserving of the severest condemnation.

3. Resolved, That we stand pledged by our course from the adoption of the Federal Constitution to the present time, to respect all the rights which that instrument guarantees to the slave States.

4. Resolved, That while we respect the rights of the slaveholding, as well as the free portions of this Union—while we will not willingly consent that wrong be done to any member of the glorious confederacy to which we belong, we are firmly and unalterably opposed to the extension of slavery over any portion of American soil now free.

5. Resolved, That the American Union is strongly based upon the affections of an overwhelming majority of the American people—that we trust that it will outlive for ages, the threats with which fanaticism assails it—that in its hour of peril, stout hearts and strong arms will be ready in every corner of our land to defend it—and that it will long continue here a proud ark of freedom, firm and enduring, the time-tried model after which shall be fashioned those free institutions which are hereafter to bestow their incalculable blessings upon the whole world.

6. Resolved, That in our opinion, Congress has the constitutional power to abolish the slave trade and slavery in the District of Columbia, and that our Senators be instructed and our Representatives requested to take all constitutional measures to accomplish that object.

Mr. Preston moved to amend the resolutions by adding the following resolution :

7. Resolved, That His Excellency the Governor be requested to transmit copies of the foregoing report and resolutions to the Governors of the several States in the Union, and also a copy of the same to each of the Senators and Representatives of this State in the Congress of the United States.

On the question,

Shall the amendment be adopted ?

Mr. Preston called for the ayes and noes.

Those who voted in the affirmative, were—

Messrs. Jenness, Sanborn, Marshall, Clough, Montgomery, Dame, Batchelder, Preston, Robb, Weeks and Clark—11.

In the negative, none.

Ayes 11, noes none.

So the affirmative of the question prevailed, and said amendment was unanimously adopted.

Resolved, That said preamble and resolutions pass, as amended.

Ordered, That the clerk ask the concurrence of the House of Representatives therein.

[Mr. Sanborn in the chair.]

Mr. Preston, by leave, presented the following resolution:

Resolved, That the thanks of the Senate be presented to the Hon. William P. Weeks for the very acceptable and impartial manner in which he has discharged the duties of the chair the present session.

On the question,

Shall the resolution pass?

It was decided unanimously in the affirmative.

To which the President replied as follows :

Senators : The resolution, which it has been your pleasure unanimously to adopt, approving of the manner in which I have performed the duties incumbent on me as the presiding officer of this body, is received, if I know my own feelings, with a heart full of gratitude.

The highest reward that a public servant can receive is to be assured that his services have been acceptable to those whom he has endeavored to serve, and that his efforts to discharge his whole duty have been duly appreciated. The constant and uniform courtesy and kindness that have been extended towards the chair by every member of the Senate during the whole session, have rendered my position agreeable and pleasant, and less arduous and difficult than I had ever dared to anticipate. The kind and generous feelings that you have manifested have placed me under great obligations, and made an impression that can never be effaced.

It is a pleasing reflection that nothing has occurred during our session to excite any unkind feelings on the part of any individual. It is true there have been different opinions as to measures, but those different opinions have been honestly entertained, and manfully and honorably supported. None of us can claim perfection, for that is an attribute that belongs to Infinite Wisdom, and not to man. So long as the work of man must necessarily partake of the imperfections of his nature, so long will his works be imperfect, and their utility sometimes doubted. Time and experience alone must determine the wisdom and usefulness of our measures.

Senators—it will always be my pride and pleasure to bear testimony to your industry and fidelity in the discharge of your official duties, and as we are about to separate, never more in all probability to meet again in the capacity in which we have been so pleasantly associated the present session, permit me to express to you my most ardent wish for your safe return to your respective homes and friends, and may Heaven's choicest blessings ever attend you and yours.
